1. Write a python function that calculates the difference between the sum of the squares and the square of the sums for a range from 1 to a max value.

2. What module allows interaction with the shell?

3. Where are command line arguments stored in python?