There are around 5 people listening to the presentation. Not listening, think 2 others sitting at the end of the lab — thinking.

They have come with the 5 teachers. They are not enough computers for each person here.

There are 2 people one sharing on computer.

When I entered the room, Adam had just finished with Audit and is starting on the U-check. I asked "why?"

At one point and Adam explains it. W2 is looking bored she is working on the screen, otherwise she looks impatient and doesn't seem to be paying much attention.

W1 has dozed off after closing her eyes. She opens her eyes for a second or again goes back to sleeping.
$N_1$ and $N_2$ are totally listening very intently. It seems nodding at what Adam says as he looks since he is following the presentation. $N_2$ also is working and listening to the presentation.

$N_3$ does not have a computer so he is sitting at the front of the presentation slides and looks like he is following it.

$N_1$ and $N_2$ keep muttering ‘mmm’, ‘yeah’ and to seem like they are getting what Adam says. $N_3$ totally stops working. [my thought: think people are impatient with Adam’s speed, since he takes time to form his sentence and explain]

The session gets over. Adam asks the audience if they have questions. $N_1$ asks a question about applying for check in a physics class.

$N_3$ now gets a free computer since $W_2$ (his partner) walks away. He starts working on it by putting out what he has learnt. Other $N_1$, $N_2$ leave and then the rest of them dispose.
